Between December 16, 1811, and late April 1812, over two-thousand earthquakes tremors occurred on the Mississippi River valley. During this period, three of the strongest earthquakes (between 7.5 and 8.8 on today's Richter Scale) in U.S. history hit Missouri near New Madrid. The earthquake caused a so-called fluvial tsunami in the Mississippi River, actually making the river run backward for several hours.

In the original 1900 novel "Wonderul Wizard of Oz," the Wizard's full name is Oscar Zoroaster Phadrig Isaac Norman Henkel Emmanuel Ambroise Diggs.

Flamin' Hot Cheetos were developed by a janitor at Frito-Lay, Richard Montanez, who got the idea after putting chili powder on some reject Cheetos and then pitched it to the CEO. He's now a successful executive and motivational speaker, and a movie is in the works about his life.

POET Bioprocessing in Macon produced its first ethanol in May of 2000, starting with an annual production capacity of 15 million gallons. Three years later, the plant expanded its capacity to 46 million gallons per year and added the production of Dakota Gold© Distillers Grains and carbon dioxide. It was the first bioethanol plant in the state of Missouri and is the largest company by revenue in Northeast Missouri.

In 1849, a cholera epidemic struck
St. Louis, MO killing over 4,000 people.

America's first daytime bank robbery during peacetime happened in Liberty, Missouri, on February 13, 1866.
Jesse and Frank James' gang was credited with it.

Missouri was the eastern starting point for the Pony Express. It existed between April 1860 and October 1861. The system used nearly 200 relief stations across what is now Missouri and California. Lone horsemen were employed to carry the mails and switch the shipment between the stations. The relay system enabled the mail to cross the frontier in record time. The Pony Express had an average delivery time of just 10 days.
